TABLE OF CONTENTS

CREATIVE THINKING

These tools support groups to generate ideas and organize them. Formats include mind-mapping, prototyping, co-drawing, classic brainstorming and more. Also included are tools for sorting, categorizing, prioritizing and selecting options.

SURVEYING AND POLLING

These tools – like Survey Monkey and Doodle – collect opinions (and other data) in real-time. Some tools gather quantified data (such as, “on a scale from one to five...”) Others can gather lengthy substantive responses to in-depth questions.

ONLINE MEETING PLATFORMS

These platforms – like Zoom and Skype – support “Same-Time, Different-Place” virtual meetings. Basic features include video, chat, real-time recording and more.

DISCUSSION GROUPS AND ONLINE COMMUNITIES

These tools enable “Different-Time, Different-Place” conversations. Formats include bulletin boards, list-serves, blogs, podcasts, video-sharing and more. Also included are platforms – like Facebook and Twitter – that allow people to create customized online communities with access to multiple media on a single platform.

CITIZEN ENGAGEMENT

These tools support public input and citizen involvement. Some integrate with mapping software, polling tools and /or access to large public databanks.

FILE SHARING

These are cloud-based applications – like Dropbox and GoogleDocs – that allow people in a collaborative network to create, share, edit and retrieve documents in many formats: essays, outlines, slides, spreadsheets, photos, audio files and more.

PROJECT MANAGEMENT

These are collaborative platforms – like Asana and Basecamp – that support activities like goal-setting, project planning, role assignments, time management, budgeting, tracking, reporting and other classic tools for project design and execution.

OTHER COMPILATIONS

Numerous associations and colleagues have compiled directories of resources, each with its own focus and style of categorizing. Here are the five best we’ve found.
